Section 1 – Sawmill & Dry Kiln Directories

This directory contains listings for sawmills, portable bandmills and dry kilns located in Massachusetts. The master listings are alphabetical by county and contain production figures, equipment, and processing details. An alphabetical statewide listing is located at the end of the publication. A list of sources of public and private assistance is also included, as well as a county map of Massachusetts. Timber harvesters are licensed in Massachusetts. The timber harvesters list is updated more frequently than this directory and should be requested separately.

Company listings are derived from available information and are offered without recommendations or preference. Any inaccuracy or omission is not a reflection on the integrity of that company's operation.

The authors made every attempt to obtain complete and accurate information from all active sawmills and dry kilns within MA. Our hope is that as this directory is updated periodically all missing or information in need of updating will be corrected. Additions and changes should be brought to the attention of: Marketing and Utilization Forester, Massachusetts Department of Conservation and Recreation, 433 West St. Suite 8 Amherst MA. 01002.

A Look At The Industry

Although Massachusetts is the third most densely populated state in the nation, forests cover about 62% of the landscape, or 3.1 million acres. Forest classified as "timberland" covers about 52% of the land area, or 2.6 million acres.

These forests contain tree species highly valued for lumber and other wood products. The major softwood species harvested is white pine, used for furniture, millwork, and in industrial applications. Hemlock is utilized for dimension lumber, landscape ties, and pulp. Red pine that was planted during the 1930's is now being harvested and marketed, usually as lumber, landscape timbers, material for log homes and industrial wood fuel. The major hardwood species harvested in Massachusetts is red oak, prized for veneer, cabinetry and millwork. Other hardwoods harvested for high value products include sugar maple, white ash and black cherry. All the oaks, red and sugar maple, black, yellow and white birch, and beech are marketed for use in a variety of lower value products. Massachusetts' wood products are marketed regionally, nationally and internationally.

Production is concentrated in the western part of the state, in Worcester, Franklin, Hampshire, Hampden, and Berkshire counties. There were 94 confirmed active sawmills in Massachusetts in 1993, producing just over 100 million board feet of lumber. The 1996 survey indicated there were 88 sawmills active, producing about 104 million board feet. This survey, conducted in 2001, lists 40 active sawmills and 18 portable bandmills. Their total reported log purchases exceeded 69 MMBF in that year.

The 19 dry kiln businesses listed range in capacity from 1,000 board feet to 1.1 MM board feet. Some of the kilns are associated with a sawmill.

How to Use the Directory Listings

Mill Type: circular headrig, band headrig or scrag mill

2001 Production: Refers to sawmill stated total purchases of logs for 2001.

Species:

WP	– Eastern White Pine	RO	– Red Oak
HE	– Hemlock	WO	– White Oak
OS	– Other Softwoods	SM	– Sugar Maple
		RM	– Red Maple
		BI	– Birch
		BE	– Beech
		AS	– Ash
		OH	– Other Hardwoods

Products: Products manufactured as reported by sawmills including: Fuel wood, boards, long lumber, decking, flooring, pallet stock, quartersawn, siding, veneer, landscape ties, log home stock, boat lumber, clipboards, dimension (structural lumber, 2x), wood components (squares, parts), furniture, pulp, timbers, beams, craft items, fencing, handles, shavings, railroad ties, and kindling

Equipment: Major equipment capabilities reported by sawmills including: Resaw, Edger, Trimmer, Firewood Processor, Planer, Molder, Chipper, and Dry Kiln

Services: Processing services offered as reported by sawmills including: custom sawing, kiln drying, portable milling, custom planning or custom molding.

Note: Due to space limitations directory listings may not include all products, services or equipment that is available from a given sawmill. Please contact the sawmill directly for current products, services and capabilities.
